IPAMS to Honor 'Wildcatter of the Year' on Saturday

(DENVER) – IPAMS 2007 Wildcatter of the Year Gala is April 28, 2007 at the Denver Center for the Performing Arts. This is the black tie event of the oil and industry in the Intermountain West. The IPAMS Wildcatter of the Year Award is a lifetime achievement award for distinguished service to our industry and the community. Members of the petroleum industry in the Intermountain West nominate deserving colleagues for the 2007 Wildcatter of the Year Award. The winner of the award is kept secret until the presentation of the video announcing the Wildcatter.

Who: The Independent Petroleum Association of Mountain States (IPAMS) Wildcatter of the Year Gala

What: Wildcatter of the Year is a tremendous honor and represents a lifetime achievement of distinguished service. Nominations are based on the unique contributions and accomplishments of the individual, particularly regarding: (1) successful longtime Rocky Mountain natural gas and oil exploration and production, (2) community service, and (3) support of oil and gas industry activities and organizations.

The annual event attracts a who's who of independent oil and natural gas producers in the Intermountain West.

When: Saturday, April 28, 2007

6:00 p.m.

Where: Seawell Ballroom

Denver Center for Performing Arts
